

COVID-19 OUR WORK CONTINUES

Facing the World has pioneered a bold new approach to sustainable healthcare, resulting in self-run centres of excellence in the countries we work in. This approach ensures that children born with facial differences can receive the surgery they need, and that these centres can be replicated both nationally and internationally.

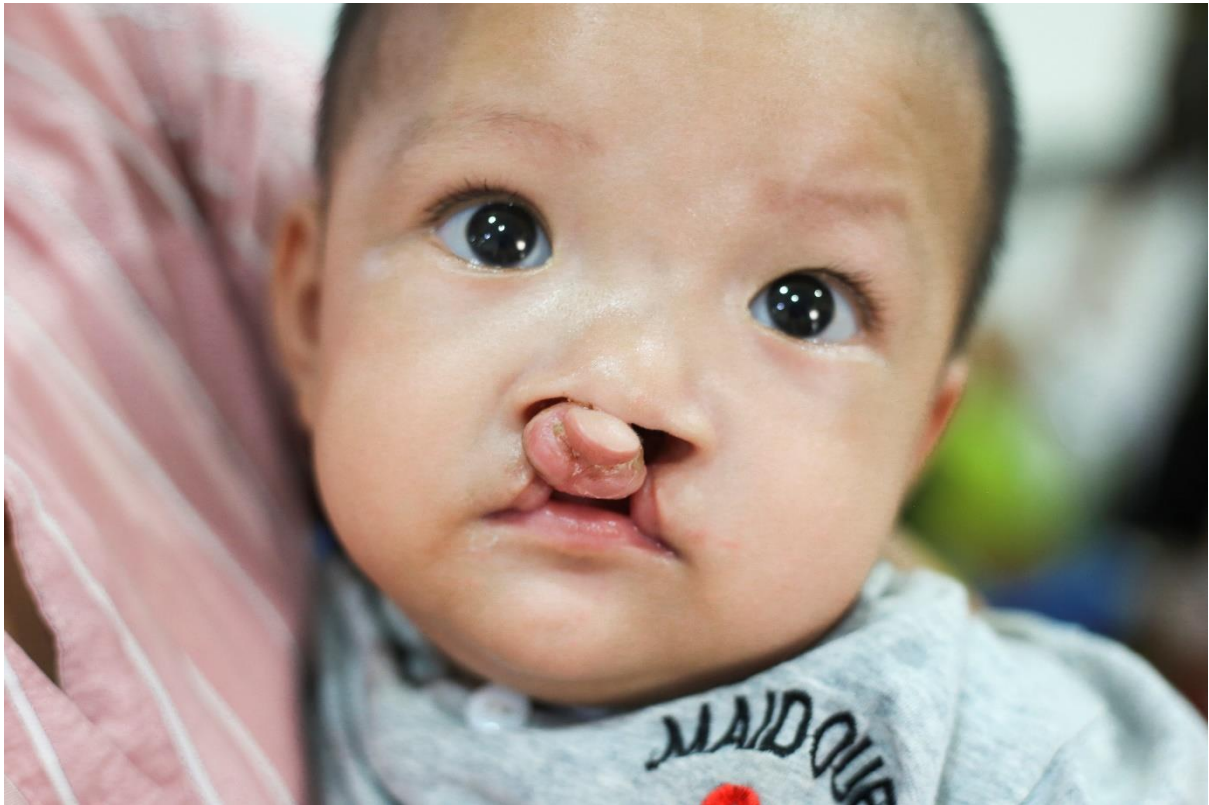

In this time of great worry, as the world confronts the Covid-19 crisis, Facing the World's efforts in Vietnam continue to help children suffering from facial differences to make their way in the world. While we are sad not to be welcoming our Vietnamese colleagues on their fellowship visits to the UK, United States and Canada this spring, we are extremely proud that clinics and life-changing surgeries are continuing safely and with great success in Vietnam for our patients in greatest need.

Facing the World would like to take this opportunity to thank all front line workers across the world who are putting their lives at risk to save others. Our work could not continue without them or without your support. We are so grateful to you all.
